

DELWARA HERITAGE AND COMMUNITY WALK

ancient heritage. contemporary lives.

देलवाड़ा DELWARA

a seva mandir initiative

Sadhna

ELEGANT HANDCRAFTED TEXTILES

Sadhna, the final stop on the Walk, is jointly owned by 700 local women artisans who produce the finest quality fair trade apparel and home furnishings. Shop at the boutique, see the craft process, and learn how Sadhna empowers women with a secure livelihood and stronger voice at home and in the community.

sadhna.org

Condé Nast India
Traveller

“Not only is Delwara home to ancient Jain temples and traditional step-wells, it is also a lesson in multi-cultural living with tribals, Muslims and Rajputs all living side by side.”

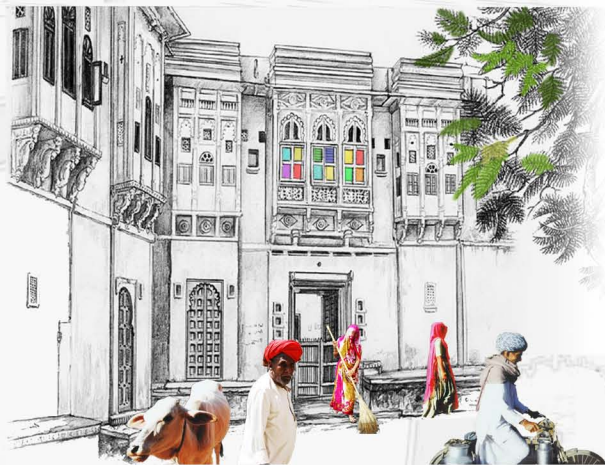

- ‘Not Your Grandfather’s Rajasthan’ Conde Nast, 2012

Haveli Street

BOOKINGS

0294 2451041

sevamandir.org/walk

walk through time

Just 40 minutes from Udaipur lies Delwara, traditionally known as 'the town of gods' for the 1000 temples once built there. Delwara boasts an ancient and visually stunning heritage that extends far beyond the 18th century palace. Each walk also offers a window into small-town India and explores the past decade of transformative development and social changes brought about by the people of Delwara and Seva Mandir, a local NGO.

on the walk

*Devigarh Palace | Traditional Pottery | Havelis | Step Wells
Ancient Jain and Hindu Temples | Royal Hunting Tower*

*Transcending Caste | Local Self-Governance
Sadhna's Textiles and the Gender Revolution*

our guides

Each of our guides is from Delwara itself, and has spent hundreds of hours researching and training to become certified by Seva Mandir. Each walk is distinguished by the guide's own unique stories, opinions and relationships.